Young people are invited to a focus group to research and learn about inspirational historical figures.

The Dacorum Heritage Trust will host the session on May 20 at its Museum Store, on Clarence Road, Berkhamsted.

The focus group – for people aged between 16 and 23 years old - will produce a number of short films on the internet about the inspirational characters.

The museum's assistant curator Nina Bevan said: "They do not necessarily have to have an interest in history. By taking part they would gain new skills, meet new people, gain a sense of achievement and have a chance to be creative."
