

Wartime Christmas display

Published on the 08 December

2008
10:12

Print this

Discover how Christmas was celebrated during the Second World War at a special heritage exhibition.

Winter in Dacorum will feature festive items from pantomime programmes, to table decorations.

It will also look at how the borough's wartime families kept warm during the winter months.

The display, staged by the Dacorum Heritage Trust, takes place at Potten End Village Hall on Saturday, December 20, between 10am and 12pm.

Entrance costs 1 and tea and mince pies will be available.